O' Midnight Star...

O' night's best companion! will you wait for a while and hear my desolation,
O' Prince of lonely hours! tell me what makes you shining in the drape of dark drowsy night,
wandering the whole sky spreading these tiny wings bright;
O paragon of virtue! I envy your endeavor that makes you happy in utter isolation;
I wonder how this chilling breeze doesn't fade your glitter away, and loneliness fails to cheat your radiance midway,
I wonder how you fight your fear or hide it from the whole world searching for something yet to be known,
O Midnight Star doesn't this magnificence of night scare you of approaching morning to keep you alone?
O' My darling friend will you walk with me and spare some sparkles to pass this nasty night,
Come along for a while to brighten my ways as I am on my way to meet the love of my life.
