Khwaja & Mir

In the heart of Bengal, where the rivers flow,
Two guiding lights began to glow.
Khwaja Yunus, the Sufi divine,
And Mir Amzad, a heart so fine.

Khwaja, a sage with wisdom profound,
Sowed seeds of peace where love was found.
Through Sharia's light and mystic lore,
He opened for souls a sacred door.

Mir, a healer with vision vast,
Dreamt of futures that forever last.
With schools and hospitals, he paved the way,
For brighter tomorrows and hope's new day.

Enayetpur sang with their deeds,
Healing the soul and tending to needs.
From education's flame to health's embrace,
They left their mark, a timeless trace.

The Khwaja's teachings, the Mir's care,
Built a legacy beyond compare.
In unity, their spirits rise,
A beacon beneath Bangladesh's skies.

O Khwaja and Mir, your names endure,
In hearts you touched, forever pure.
Guiding the lost with love and grace,
Your light shines on in every place.
